

HEALTHCARE APPRENTICESHIPS FOR EMPLOYERS

INDUSTRY-LED PROGRAM TO RETAIN AND DEVELOP OUR WORKFORCE

The Healthcare Apprenticeship Expansion Program (HAEP) is addressing the skills gap in healthcare by growing a strong pipeline of workers with industry-identified skills and competencies, with a special focus on careers in senior living. This industry-led initiative supports employers that are building career paths for target occupations, including caregivers, CNAs, LPNs, and RNs.

Through a four-year federal grant with the U.S. Department of Labor, the collaborative is developing apprenticeship opportunities in healthcare leadership—including supervisors, clinical directors, and executive directors—as well as cybersecurity. For these career paths, HAEP is identifying common competencies and training resources that will be part of a national apprenticeship.

The consortium aims to enroll 7,200 registered apprentices over the four-year project. Employer partners will be reimbursed for a portion of their apprentice training costs. In addition, their apprentices will receive case management and support services including emergency assistance.

WHAT IS AN APPRENTICESHIP?

Apprenticeships are structured learning programs used to train workers in a particular career. Apprenticeships define career paths, lay out on-the-job training and classroom (including on-line) learning for advancement, and detail promotions and wage increases for apprentices. These programs are a proven workforce strategy to improve recruitment and retention, while creating a more engaged and satisfied workforce.
